PROFILE

I am a Professional, motivated and a self driven individual with over ten years of successful track record Drug/ substance use and abuse prevention, treatment, care and support, Policy Development, Management, Project Management, Intergovernmental Coordination, Stakeholders Relations Management, Strategies, Planning and Programs Implementation amongst other abilities.

I could work with professionals and non -professionals from diverse backgrounds at various levels. I have established a history of producing accurate and timely reports.

In the field of Drug Demand Reduction, I have played a pivotal role, especially ensuring that capacity building happens in South Africa. I have been trained by Global Trainers and passed the ICAP 1 examination in 2018. Thereafter, I trained the social workers working in the field of Drug Demand Reduction in South Africa. Among the social workers and other related professionals, I have trained them to pass the International Certified Addiction Professional (ICAP 1) examination that took place on 16 February 2020. I have Post graduate Diploma in Addiction Care from University of Cape Town, which I graduated in 2024.

CAREER OBJECTIVE

I am currently implementing Universal Treatment Curriculum in South Africa. I am working in the Field of Drug Demand Reduction, public service or private sector to enhance my knowledge and skills in governance, management, policy research and analysis. Intergovernmental relations and coordination can be utilized and developed further. I am currently assisting clients with substance abuse problems and also rendering therapy to people with emotional and mental health issues.

PERSONAL ATTRIBUTES

Leadership Skills	I am an active member of the departmental policy forum and the Medical Research Council Advisory Council, United National Working Group Member and Research Triangle Advisory Committee member. I also lead the Prg Provincial Substance Abuse Forums and 238 Local Drug Action Committees. Participating in these forums afforded me an opportunity to interact with various senior managers and acquire the skill to make accurate decisions about research goals that are aligned to the broader departmental vision.
Communication Skills	As a researcher in the National Department of Social Development, the Human Sciences Research Council, the Medical Research Council and United Nations Office on Drugs and Crimes, Provincial Substance Abuse Forums at Provincial levels, Local Drug Action Committees at local levels. My positions require me to consistently communicate with senior managers, various stakeholders, civil society, and scholars. From this, I learnt to communicate relevant information (including technical material) in a concise, organized fashion and demonstrated logical thinking when framing approaches to solving research problems. I also learnt to relate to other colleagues and managed to be a good mentor for interns in the field of research.
Initiative	As a researcher in the Department of Social Development and Executive Secretariat support for the Central Drug Authority, I acquired the skill to be initiative and acquired the ability to suggest new ideas and justify them to the group, keeping up to date with new ideas in policy and social development issues, as well as qualitative and quantitative research methods.
Commitment	Maturing in the field of social research and knowing that the work of researchers can inform policies, remedy challenges faced by different communities excites me. While I realized that it can be extremely challenging and fun to be a researcher, executive secretariat and strategic coordinator of relevant government departments, I learnt to be technically accurate about how to do social research and be professionally honest about the work I do. I also learnt to handle risks and difficult tasks with fortitude and thoughtfulness I possess.
Flexibility	As a researcher, executive secretariat and strategic coordinator within government, the position requires me to support other directorates and collaborate with other departments in their research matters, policies and legislation. My career in research allowed me to respond to the changing social, organizational, and cultural landscape and research environment I found myself in, and open to accepting opinions and practices different from mine.
Values	As a researcher, the job requires me to work independently with minimal supervision. I observe a set of values that allow me to uphold respect, integrity, honesty, punctuality and reliability in everything that I do. I tend to prioritize and sequence my tasks to meet goals and deadlines I have and carry these values with me even within my work.

Stability

I am a stable person in both my private and work life. I build my own support system, and able to manage my time efficiently. I have good service within the public service and the parastatals which I have worked for. I have worked for more than ten years in the Public Service
