1.	Parliament should consider amending section 6(1) of the Intelligence Services Oversight Act 40 of 1994 , to ensure that, before an election, the outgoing Joint Standing Committee on Intelligence is required to report to	The JSCI has considered the recommendation of amending section 6(1) of the Oversight Act and resolved that there was no need to amend section 6(1) as section 6(2) already made provision for reporting. Joint rule 1(2)(l) read with joint rule 8(5) in Schedule B of the Rules of the JSCI provide for special reporting of the JSCI. It defines the “special report” as a report that is prepared by the Committee at the request of Parliament, the President or the Minister responsible for each Service, or when the Committee deems it necessary , and tabled or submitted as provided for in section 6(2) of the Act. In terms of this

	Parliament on as much as possible of the period preceding the election. It was noted that all Committees of Parliament are required to prepare a Legacy Report at the end of a five-year term of Parliament, which is handed over to the next Parliament for consideration, and follow through, mainly on the work of committees of the previous term of Parliament.	defined special report, the Committee may report to Parliament, through the special report mechanism, at any given time as and when the Committee deems it necessary.
2.	Parliament should consider whether it would be desirable to enact legislation which protects Members of Parliament from losing their party membership (and therefore their seats in Parliament) merely for exercising their oversight duties reasonably and in good faith.	The constitutional oath of office for all Members of Parliament should serve as a guideline for executing Members' constitutionally mandated functions. Sections 58 and 71 of the Constitution, 1996 which deal with privilege. and which provide that Cabinet members, Deputy Ministers, members of the National Assembly, delegates to the National Council of Provinces and local government representatives participating in the Council, have freedom of speech in the Assembly and the Council and in its committees, subject to its rules and orders and are not liable to civil or criminal proceedings, arrest, imprisonment or damages for anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Assembly, the Council or any of its committees, or anything revealed as a result of anything that they have said in, produced before or submitted to the Assembly, the Council or any of its committees. Section 6 of the Powers, Privileges and Immunities of Parliament and Provincial Legislatures Act, 2004 already provides for the protection of

		members for the exercise of their constitutional responsibilities. The Section provides for the privileges, immunities, independence and protection of members and Parliament.
3.	Subject to budgetary restraints, the scale and skills of the research and technical assistance made available to the portfolio committees be enhanced.	In the last 12 months, 10 content advisers supporting 10 committees have been appointed, 3 in the process of being appointed; 4 legal advisers to increase drafting and related capacity have since been appointed, 3 more are in the process of being appointed. 5 researchers have been appointed, recruitment for 11 researchers is underway. All critical appointments aimed at addressing capacity constraints are being made.
4.	Parliament needs to make it clear that the practice of late submissions to portfolio committees will not be tolerated.	Committees already have powers in the Rules and legislation (Powers, Privileges and Immunities of Parliament and Provincial Legislatures Act) to obtain information they need.
5.	Parliament should consider whether there is a need to legislate on the issue of reports by representatives of the Executive to Parliament.	The Rules Committee determined that there is no need for legislation in this regard. Instead, it agreed on parameters for guidelines on managing this exercise.
6.	Parliament needs to make clear that non-attendance by ministers and others scheduled to attend portfolio committee meetings will not be tolerated and to ensure that consequences are visited on those	The Rules Committee concluded that there was no need for additional legislation or rules. The Committee also noted that the Powers, Privileges and Immunities of Parliament and Provincial Legislatures Act already made it an offence for persons to refuse to appear before Parliament. As an example, in the past 12 months a Minister was summoned for not appearing before the Committee on Tourism.

	who offend without adequate cause. (Parliament should consider whether there is a need to legislate on this issue.
7.	Parliament should consider whether it supports the principle of "amendatory accountability" and, if it does, whether it would be desirable to give detailed substance to this principle in an Act of Parliament, along the lines suggested in the Corder report.	Parliament undertook research on international practices and specifically whether other countries had comparable laws. The research found that, from the 12 countries surveyed, none had statutes. The Rules Committee agreed that, as a general point, legislation would not necessarily serve to address all the challenges identified by the State Capture Commission.
8.	Consideration should be given by Parliament to amendments to its own rules, with a view to addressing the problem of ministers who fail to report back to Parliament on what if anything has been done in respect of remedial measures proposed by Parliament or on alternative methods preferred by them to address defective performance highlighted by Parliament.	The Rules Committee acknowledged that the Sixth Parliament had taken steps to facilitate co-operation between Parliament and the Executive. The Committee concluded that there was no need for additional legislation or rules.
9.	The Commission supports the recommendation that, with the support of a majority of members of	The Rules Committee acknowledged that the Sixth Parliament had taken steps to facilitate co-operation between Parliament and the Executive.

	a portfolio committee, a portfolio committee could put a minister to terms in respect of remedial action, and could thereafter, through the Speaker intercede with the President, as head of the national executive, in the event of non-compliance. The Leader of Government Business could also play a role in such a process.	The Committee concluded that there was no need for additional legislation or rules.
10.	Parliament should consider whether more representatives of opposition parties should be appointed as chairs of portfolio committees.	The Rules Committee did not agree with the view expressed by the State Capture Commission that parliamentary oversight may be better served if more chairpersons were elected from minority parties but reiterated that Section 57 of the Constitution (1996), empowered the Assembly to determine its internal arrangements, proceedings and procedures.
11.	Parliament to consider whether it is desirable to amend its rules to give effect to the proposals by Corruption Watch on appointments by Parliament.	The Rules Committee noted that the option of legislative review may not resolve the challenges alluded to by the State Capture Commission. Moreover, there were already laws and best practices concerning the selection of certain office-bearers and that all appointments must be based on merit. Best practices already developed by Parliament should be maintained.

12.	Parliament should consider whether it would be desirable for it to establish a committee whose function is or includes oversight over acts or omissions by the President and Presidency, which are not overseen by existing portfolio committees.	The Rules Committee resolved that the matter be considered as work in progress. The Committee further agreed that the desk-top research conducted by the Parliamentary Budget Office should be complemented with a fact-finding visit (scheduled for 17 to 20 July 2023) with a view to exploring international best practice in respect of the matter. In so doing, a firm foundation could be laid for the Seventh Parliament.
13.	Political Party Funding Act 6 of 2018 be amended to criminalise the making of donations to political parties in the expectation of or with a view to the granting of procurement tenders or contracts as a reward for or in recognition of such grants having been made.	The Act is part of legislation being reviewed in the wake of the Electoral Amendment Act, 2023 which provides for independents. Section 10 of the Act already makes it an offence to give or receive a donation for any reason other than party political reasons, and members receiving a donation that is not on behalf of a party. Section 8 also makes it an offence to receive donation from a prohibited source.
14.	Parliament should consider whether introducing a constituency-based (but still proportionally representative) electoral system would enhance the capacity of Members of Parliament to hold the Executive accountable. If Parliament considers that introducing a constituency-based system has this advantage, it is recommended that it should consider whether, when	The Electoral Amendment Act, 2023 recently passed by Parliament makes provision in section 23 for an Electoral Reform Consultation Panel, which the Minister must establish. The functions of the Panel inter alia are to independently investigate, consult on, report on and make recommendations in respect of potential reforms of the electoral system for the election of the National Assembly and Provincial Legislatures.

	weighed against any possible disadvantages, this advantage justifies amending the existing electoral system.
15.	Parliament to ensure that adequate funds are allocated, particularly to portfolio committees, to enable effective parliamentary oversight.	Parliament is in ongoing consultations with National Treasury for more resources in fulfilment of its constitutional mandate.
16.	Parliament to implement a system to "track and monitor" implementation (or non-implementation) by the Executive of corrective action proposed in reports adopted by Parliament.	At present, most committees have a "recommendation tracking tool" in place to follow up on actions to be taken by the Executive. The Houses too have manual systems in place and an e-system is being piloted. This matter is also part of the Annual Performance Plan of the institution.
17.	Parliament to establish an Oversight and Advisory Section to provide advice, technical support, co-ordination, and tracking and monitoring mechanisms on issues arising from oversight and accountability activities of Members of Parliament and the committees to which they belong.	The matter of oversight monitoring, tracking and advisory is currently receiving attention, with the focus being on capacity more than on establishing new structures.
18.	Interactions between the National Executive and Parliament	There are ongoing interactions between Parliament and the Leader of Government Business on parliamentary processes.

		Parliament and National Treasury are also engaging with a view to giving appropriate ways to give effect to the State Capture Commission's recommendations on the resourcing of Parliament, specifically with respect to its capacity to hold the Executive to account.
19.	Matters concerning implicated members	12 cases were referred to the Joint Committee on Ethics and Members Interests, and 8 have been concluded.
